

Rubber in Sri Lanka

Sri Lanka Rubber plantations mainly consist of small plantation holders as well as bigger plantation holders that are managed by some companies in private sectors, but it is not without rubber estates those are belonging to the government. Actually small plantation holders are mainly remaining in the village. Some of the small plantations are maintained by family members, like a self-employment.

Expecting bigger profits, some companies started to reveal the rubber and replanted the oil palm trees, That is rapidly destroys the beauty of environment as well as decreased the under water level, because of this planting, it was recognized by the government with considering the reports of some investigations that was provided by some societies, and it was taken an prompt actions to limit the replanting of oil palms,

RUBBER PLANTATIONS In the Western province of Sri Lanka

They are tapping the rubber.

Rubber juice is flowing in to the containers like this.

He is collecting liquid in to the bigger containers. After the few hours of tapping rubber

One of the Oil Palm estates locates on the western province of Sri Lanka.

